Short (Research) Profile & Mission

- The Kaczuchy Dziennikarskie Foundation is an initiative by young people. Our main objectives are to combat disinformation, promote reliable journalism (fact-checking) and provide media literacy education. We produce independent content and engage local communities, striving to create an open space for dialogue, promoting human rights, tolerance and society's resilience to manipulation.

Current (Research) Project

• Social Reportage

The project involves producing a series of in-depth reports documenting the real challenges, needs and problems faced by residents of smaller towns and villages. These initiatives serve not only to document these issues, but above all to raise public awareness and foster dialogue between residents and decision-makers.

Current (Research) Project

• Workshop

The Kaczuchy Dziennikarskie Foundation is planning to run a four-hour workshop. The first session will teach HR teams how to communicate effectively and authentically with Generation Z.

Questions to Academia

- What are the most effective, research-backed methods for teaching information verification that we can easily implement in our grassroots workshops?
- Collaboration: We are looking for researchers from Poland and Germany who are interested in investigating (using our work as a case study) how local journalism and media literacy help to reduce social polarisation.

Questions to Civil Society

- What are the biggest obstacles to digital education and the dissemination of reliable information in smaller towns in Poland and Germany?
- Collaboration: We are looking for German and Polish non-governmental organisations working in the field of civic education to exchange expertise and build a cross-border support network for young journalists and activists.

Questions to (Political) Decision-Makers

- What specific systemic measures are you planning (in Poland and Germany) to incorporate practical media education and fact-checking into the standard school curriculum?
- How does the public administration intend to support local, independent journalistic organisations that safeguard the quality of public debate in the long-term?
