

EXAMPLE QUESTIONS FOR THE PATHS ADMISSIONS EXAM
I	SOCIOLOGY
1.	What does the concept of “othering” describe in sociology?	A	A process through which certain groups are represented as different, foreign or less belonging
		B	A method for counting the total number of migrants in a country
		C	A legal procedure for granting international protection
		D	A neutral description of all social differences
II	POLITICAL SCIENCE AND PUBLIC ADMINISTRATION
2.	Framing migration as a “security threat” rather than a “humanitarian issue” primarily reflects a change in:	A	Political framing that shapes subsequent policy choices
		B	Policy design
		C	The legal status of migrants
		D	Migration flows
III	LAW

3.	Under which circumstances is a person most likely to be considered an asylum seeker rather than a refugee?	A	They have applied for international protection but have not yet received a formal refugee status determination
		B	They have been granted permanent residence by the host state
		C	They have voluntarily returned to their country of origin
		D	They do not have a well-founded fear of persecution
IV	PSYCHOLOGY
4.	Unaccompanied minors:	A	The reasons for their departure vary greatly, and beyond the protection conditions in the host country, which can sometimes reinforce their sense of insecurity, the upheavals they experience have significant psychological implications.
		B	The reasons for their departure from their country of origin vary greatly, but their status ensures they are immediately taken into care in the host countries, enabling them to integrate without experiencing any psychological distress.
		C	They always leave of their own accord and immediately find protection in the host countries, which enables them to cope with the changes and move on from their migration experiences.
		D	I don't know.